ARGUMENTATION AND DEBATING. Revised Edition

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER. The revision of this popular text is in accord with the experience and judgment of more than a hundred teachers who have actually used the original in their classes. This testing has resulted in a text eminently clear, up-to-date, and practical. $1.40. Postpaid.

AMERICAN IDEALS

Edited by NORMAN FOERSTER and W. W. PIERSON, JR. A collection of essays and addresses by leading statesmen and men of letters setting forth the ideals that have guided our national development. Though designed for reading in freshman English Composition Courses, the book is of value for reference in secondary schools. In it are included recent notable speeches by Woodrow Wilson, Theodore Roosevelt, Elihu Root, Robert Lansing, A. L. Lowell, and like leaders in thought. Foreign opinion of the United States finds expression in essays or speeches by James Bryce, Arthur Balfour, Kuno Francke and de Tocqueville. $1.25. Postpaid.

THE PATRIOTIC READER

Edited by KATHARINE I. BEMIS and M. E. HOLTZ, assisted by HENRY LESTER SMITH. Nearly a hundred selections of poetry and prose suitable for reading in the Junior High School or upper grammar grades. Speeches or writings of the following are included: Woodrow Wilson (War Message), Theodore Roosevelt, Henry Cabot Lodge, Abraham Lincoln, Henry Grady, Daniel Webster, Herbert Henry Asquith, Sir Wilfred Laurier, M. Viviani, Henry van Dyke, Owen Wister, Henry Watterson, Mary Antin, Hermann Hagedorn. Ready in October.

ENGLISH LITERATURE

An Introduction and Guide to the Best English Books

A HANDBOOK FOR SCHOOLS AND READERS

By EDWIN L. MILLER, A.M.

Principal Northwestern High School, Detroit, Michigan

JAMES FLEMING HOSIC, Editor The English Journal, Chicago.

"Mr. Miller is a true bookman and is possessed of a highly interesting and individual way of putting ideas that makes all of his writing delightful reading. I venture to prophesy great success for his new book, feeling confident that his ripe experience as a teacher has fitted him for the difficult task of writing a text that high school boys and girls can and will understand and enjoy."

Some of the Unusual Qualities of This Splendid Volume Are:

1. The author is "human,"—and the book is an expression of the author's love of literature.
2. The pages are not burdened with facts, but with inspiration to reading.
3. The high school boy and girl have been continually borne in mind so that he and she will find this book a storehouse of information and that literature interprets and enriches life.
4. Emphasis is laid on forces and influences, not upon dates.
5. Questions and answers and charts illustrating contemporary history and contemporary literature are excellent pedagogical assistants.
6. The book is divided into fifty chapters, each chapter making a convenient lesson in itself and carrying with it a message which is complete in itself—a result missed in those text-books not so arranged.
7. There are no black-faced heads—the chapters make the proper division and the omission of the black-faced type maintains the continuity of the narrative, a pedagogical innovation which will be welcomed.
8. The author, in writing the book, and the publishers, in co-operating with him upon the splendid series of illustrations, the binding and the type page, have made every effort to prepare a volume which the young people will read without a sense of doing hack work.
9. It is modern—(a) For the first time the important women writers of the 19th century have been given proper attention; (b) the material is brought absolutely to date, treating Arnold Bennett, H. G. Wells, Mr. Brilling Sees it Through, Joseph Conrad, etc.; (c) there is an epilogue upon the effect that the war will have upon Anglo-Saxon Literature.
10. An Appendix of English History, good stories, novels and plays.
11. An Index very complete, covering 22 pages.

78 unusual illustrations. 597 pages. Map and charts. Large 12mo. $1.60 net.

Are You Teaching English Grammar?

If so, are you satisfied with your own knowledge of the subject? Are your pupils getting hold of the essential facts and principles? Do you have to search through 175 pages or more to find a needed fact? Do you like Grammar? Do your pupils like it?

English Grammar, properly taught, is a most interesting subject. Its first value is as a drill in accurate thinking. Interest is in proportion to the thinking developed. The teacher or the book that tells too much smothers thought and kills interest. There is need for a concise Grammar book that is free from confusing verbosity.

THE GRAMMAR FOR THINKERS

is a small book that fills this need. It is adequate for all demands below the High School. The definitions are simple but logically correct. The illustrative sentences are so chosen from valuable literature as to really illustrate the points to be made. Continuous appeal is made to independent and accurate thinking. The book has been fully tested in the schoolroom.

ORAL ENGLISH

A satisfactory correlation of Oral English with certain of the regular composition and literature courses of the secondary schools has been effected by some of the leading high schools of the United States through the use of the inexpensive and compact little text, Elements of Debating, by LEVERETT S. LYON of the Joliet Township High School.

The virtues claimed for this little book by those who have put it into the hands of their pupils are these—

- ¶ It offers an effective way of producing Oral English.
- ¶ Instead of interfering with the regular composition and literature work, it correlates as a stimulating supplement.
- ¶ The book teaches the subject, thus establishing the confidence of the teacher untrained in public speaking and enabling such a teacher to do highly effective work.
- ¶ The book is written by a high-school man familiar with the high-school problem and is soundly within the vocabulary and experience of high-school pupils.
- ¶ A pamphlet, "Aid in Oral English," will be sent for the asking.

Let the Class Read Each Essay Together

Project the pupils' themes on the screen, so that the whole class may criticize. Misspelled words, grammatical errors, etc., will be driven home if the pupils see their mistakes confronting them on a brilliant screen "as big as life." Such criticism may equal in value the private consultation. With the

Bausch^{and} Lomb Balopticon

you can project the pupil's composition sheet directly on the screen.

The Home Balopticon (illustrated) projects book pages, maps, photos, etc., as well as lantern slides. Its gas-filled Mazda lamp runs itself, like an incandescent, and attaches to any lamp socket. The Combined Balopticon is the ideal stereopticon, not only for English, but for all projection purposes in large classrooms and auditoriums. Special paper holders can be provided on both models for carrying the regular theme paper.
